A Workshop on Role of Importance of Pharmacy in Current Vaccine Industry was organized by St Pauls college of Pharmacy from 16-12-2019 to 18-12-2019.

SUMMARY

The main focus will be on the diverse mechanisms of adaptive immunity, whereby specialized classes of lymphocytes recognize and target pathogenic microorganisms or the cells infected with them, the cells of the immune system, and the tissues in which they develop and through which they circulate or migrate. In later sections, outline the specialized functions of the different types of cells and the mechanisms by which they eliminate infection. During global health emergencies, organizations may be used to allow emergency use of the vaccine. Typically, companies will work independently to complete clinical development plans for a vaccine. Once a vaccine is authorized, manufacturing begins to scale up. The antigen (part of the germ that our immune system reacts to) is weakened or deactivated. To form the full vaccine, all ingredients are combined.

The global response to COVID-19 has demonstrated the importance of preparedness for infectious diseases, particularly influenza. There is a need for more effective influenza vaccines and modern manufacturing technologies that are adaptable and scalable to meet demand during a pandemic. The rapid development of vaccines has demonstrated what is possible with extensive data sharing, researchers who have the necessary resources and novel technologies to conduct and apply their research, rolling review by regulators, and public-private partnerships, the process of research and development of novel vaccines can be significantly optimized when stakeholders are provided with the resources and technologies needed to support their response.

Vaccine Research and Development to Advance Pandemic and Seasonal Influenza

Preparedness and Response focuses on how to leverage the knowledge gained from the COVID-19 pandemic to optimize vaccine research and development (R&D) to support the prevention and control of seasonal and pandemic influenza. The committee's findings address four dimensions of vaccine R&D: (1) basic and translational science, (2) clinical science, (3) manufacturing science, and (4) regulatory science.

A Workshop on Intellectual Property Rights was organized by St Pauls college of Pharmacy from 8-7-2019 to 12-7-2019.

SUMMARY

Intellectual Property rights means providing property rights through patents, copyrights and trademarks. Holders of intellectual property rights have a monopoly on the usage of property or items for a specified time period.

The four main types of intellectual property are Patents used for protecting new inventions, ideas, or processes. Patent holders need to pay periodic government renewal fees. An approved patent is for a limited time period. Know more about Patents Act in India. Copyrights protects the ideas, examples would be written works, music, art, etc. Trademarks is something that protects the symbols, colors, phrases, sounds, design etc. Trade Secrets may be strategies, systems, formulas, or other confidential information of an organization that provides them a competitive advantage in the market. Intellectual Property Rights are important to stimulate and promote research and development. If the inventions and ideas of individuals and organizations are not protected then the concerned people or organizations will not reap the benefits of their hard work and naturally, it will lead to discontent and reduce the efforts in the field of research and development, which is extremely important for the growth and development of humanity.
